Pathological Liar Meryl Dorey's pathetic attempt at impersonation.

 Wednesday, May 9, 2012 at 6:31PM

That infamous assclown Meryl Dorey of the Australian [anti-]Vaccination Network (AVN) has created the website AustralianSceptics.com (fake Site) in a pathetic revenge attempt towards those who expose her fraudulent "charity" for the money making sham that it really is.

Dan's Journal of Skepticism

Meryl Dorey and the massive butthurt.

 Friday, August 31, 2012 at 11:36PM

Oh dear, it looks like Australia's leading anti-vaccination conspiracy theorist is upset with my attempts to get her to comply with government regulations. Meryl Dorey has setup a new section on the Australian Vaccination Networks website entitled "Dossier of Attacks on the AVN" where she whinges about all the criticism she's been receiving as a result of her dangerous anti-vaccination ideology, and her failure to comply with government regulations. I found it very amusing that she decided to complain about my reporting her to the New South Wales Fair Trading.

Back in May 2012 I wrote to NSW Fair Trading to point out that the Australian Vaccination Network failed to comply with Section 41 of the ASSOCIATIONS INCORPORATION ACT 2009 (NSW).

Hello,

I am writing to inform you that The Australian Vaccination Network Inc has recently established a new website at <http://australiansceptics.com> with the title "The REAL Australian Sceptics", this is a deliberate attempt to mislead and deceive the public by purposefully using a confusingly similar name to Australian Sceptics Inc.

Despite the requirement under Section 41 of the ASSOCIATIONS INCORPORATION ACT 2009 (NSW) which states "An association must not issue any letter, statement, invoice, notice, publication, order for goods or services or receipt in connection with its activities unless the association's name appears in legible characters on the document.". The Australian Vaccination Network Inc has not included their name anywhere on the publication at <http://australiansceptics.com>. This publication is being promoted on their official Facebook and Twitter accounts, and the domain name australiansceptics.com is registered to "Australian Vaccination Network" there is no doubt that this publication belongs to them.

Best Regards,

~Dan Buzzard

This blatant attempt to enforce the current regulations did not sit well with Meryl Dorey and she decided to include me in her "Dossier". I take this as a sign that I must have done something right.

"Dan Buzzard who is associated with both the Australian Skeptics and Stop the AVN, has been filing complaints with government authorities and writing to venues where the AVN was hosting seminars for several years now. The first image below is a letter he sent to the NSW Department of Fair Trading complaining about the fact that our RealAustralianSkeptics blog did not mention the Australian Vaccination Network. Well, the reason for that is that the blog is actually ON the Australian Vaccination Network's website! -Meryl Dorey

Since Meryl is clearly suffering from massive butthurt I thought perhaps I could help her out. So I wrote a helpful letter and included a copy of the BUTTHURT REPORT FORM.

I realise that over the last few months both myself and other skeptics have said and done things that upset you. Many of these things involve the use of "current legislation" to hold you to account for breaching government regulations. Other activities involve honest critique of your claims and statements.

I understand that this honesty on the part of skeptics has been the cause of much butthurt for you and your follow anti-vaxxers. So because I'm such a thoughtful person I thought I could help you out with all future butthurts that are sure to follow.

Attached is BUTTHURT REPORT FORM. So the next time you're hurt, stressed or otherwise upset by the truth simply fill the form out and by the time you realise what a douche you've been you will have forgotten that caused the butthurt in the first place.

Enjoy!

My handwriting, my reason for always typing letters.

I trust she will find my letter and attachment most useful. If not she will probably make another media release about it, but at least I tried.

In addition to mailing the Butthurt form I also decided to supply Meryl with more content for the dossier on me. I know Meryl likes homeopathy so what better than to direct her to evidence that I might have been rude to someone who sold the bogus medicine. Yes it's the Cease and Desist I received.

Hi Meryl,

Thank you for creating the "Dossier of Attacks on the AVN" I find it very fun and amusing. But don't worry, I won't be going anywhere I'll keep you well supplied with content for the Dossier.

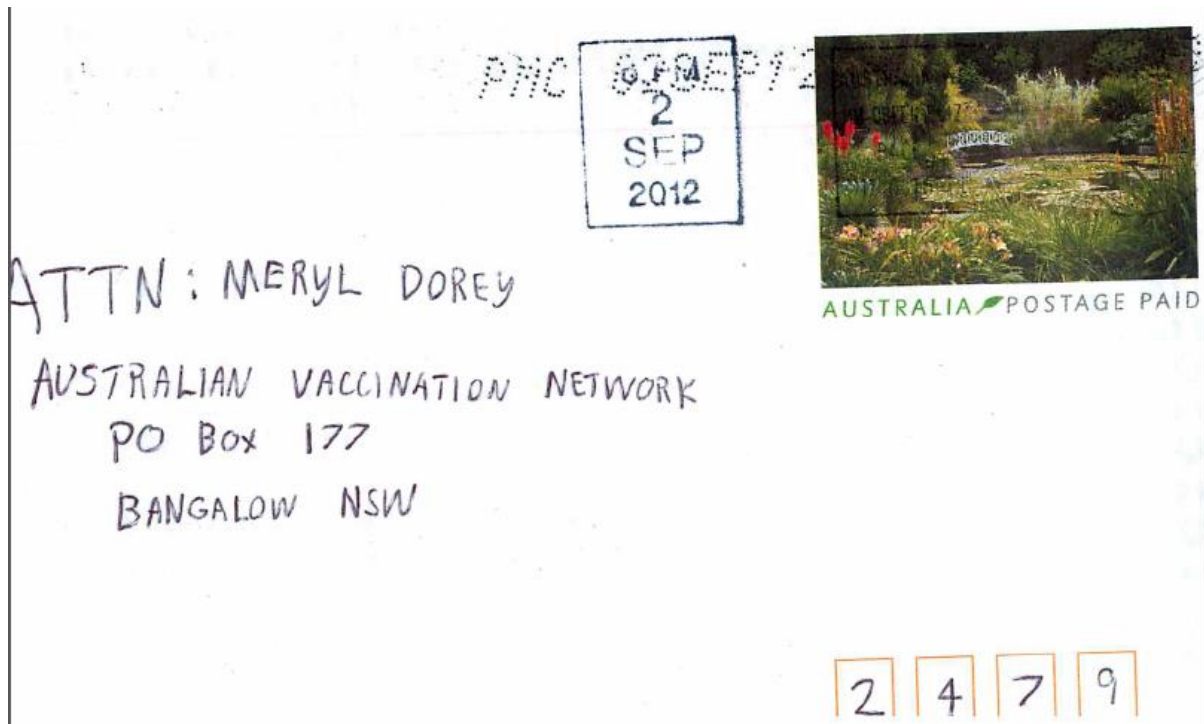

I know you're a fan of Homeopathy for example. So perhaps you'd be interested in covering this.

RECENT ACTIVITY - remove all activity

I just received my AVO summons from the police who seemed surprised by my enthusiasm in receiving it. Perhaps people aren't meant to be happy when they receive one.

Turns out Meryl Dorey looked for a D Buzzard in the phone book and then sent the AV0 to my relative with the same initial. So Meryl Dorey has been stalking and harassed my family with the police which I'm sure isn't going to make her look good in court. Neither is her constant war on free speech, especially when it involves abusing a system that was setup in good faith. (Facebook's abuse report mechanism)

Here's the orders she's seeking "The defendant must not approach or contact the protected persons by any means whatsoever except through the defendants legal representative." I wonder if it's still ok to contact the AVN an organisation whose official email happens to be Meryl@avn.org.au? After all the applicant is Meryl Dorey, not the Australian Vaccination Network or Dorey on behalf of the organisation. I should also add that at no point has Meryl ever requested that I cease emailing her. I guess those 4 emails and 1 letter in 3 years really got to her.

Her second order is "The defendant must not mention the applicant in any online forum in any derogatory manner." Perhaps if I turn my blog into a 'Dossier' she'll find it more acceptable?

The applicant relies on the following grounds:
 "The defendant has been harassing me by email and online for over 3 years, on September 2, 2012, he published my postal address on Twitter and asked people to send me violent pornographic images called 'goatse' images by mail. This campaign of verbal abuse against me is unrelenting and I am fearful of opening my mail."

Actually I posted the AVNs postal address (PO Box) not Meryl's home address, and suggested in joke that it could be a place to send such material. A far cry from "exhorting people to send violent pornography" as claimed in her "Dossier". At least no one in the intended audience (mostly SAVN) appeared to perceive it as anything but its intended context.

I guess a summons 2 days before a court hearing thousands of kilometers is better than no summons at all.

The Austrailian Vaccination Awareness Network recently held one of their echo chamber meetings in which they share organic finger foods and speculate about BigPharma's plans to ruin everything.

One of their speakers, a genuinely fearless person named Scott Harrison, started his talk with a personal comment about how he'd had allergies, eczema, and ADHD as a child, and was also vaccinated. The room chuckled and smiled in sympathy.

But then he said that correlation doesn't equal causation, and the room fell silent. He went on to say that today, rather than dropping dead people survive these infections but must live with the disabilities they cause. And he stressed the importance of herd immunity to the success of any individual vaccination.

When Mr. Harrison finished the MC turned to the audience and said, apologetically, "We didn't know what he would talk about when we invited him to speak." Lol.

I salute you, Mr. Harrison. For you have trolled deep amongst the derps.

Coran Stow David, your comment has been removed, sorry. Whilst I appreciate that the comment is a humorous reference to a great film, the AVN are notoriously over-sensitive to that particular sentiment and would claim that as a threat, as incredible as that sounds.

Ancient Illyria AVO's are valid across state borders, and it's important that you fight it as if it's the same as the other one I saw, she is attempting to use the AVO system to stop you talking about her and the AVN online, and you need to fight that as she has no right to do that. AVO's are to protect against violence or perceived violence, and if you have issued no threats then you need to fight this all the way (and you need a copy of what she is claiming that you have done as she has had to make a claim in order to submit the application) ...

Ancient Illyria You can object to an Apprehended Violence Order being made against you and have the matter adjourned for trial at a later date. Under these circumstances, an interim AVO will be issued until the trial date.

Rhianna Miles I think an interim AVO is only issued if the magistrate agrees that there is risk. I don't see how anyone can think there's risk from somebody who lives literally thousands of kilometres away.

Dan Buzzard She hasn't made any submissions or sent any summons. The AVO is invalid, as are all court proceeding that are commenced without the defendants knowledge, I wouldn't know about it without Peter Bowditch spotting my name on the list.

She will be asked in court to prove that she completed the necessary paper work. Which she has not done so.

Peter Bowditch Dan, when I was sued by the pyramid scheme operators they went to court ex parte, which meant that they didn't have to notify me. The judge wouldn't accept this, so I was served the day after proceedings began. The fact that it is in the court list proves that she has filed the necessary paperwork.

Ancient Illyria It's interesting to note though, that she has brought this action herself .. not through the police. Doesn't make any difference, but it is interesting ... and an AVO can be issued if the other party is absent, and she has the proof that you are aware of it, you've posted it here.

Dan Buzzard Perhaps NSW courts operate differently to WA courts. Over here it's not legal to go to court without the other parties knowledge.

I know someone who got charged with "contempt of court" for failure to correctly issue a summons.

Whatever the procedures this'll be fun, for me anyway.

Nae Hutch Wow. I'm not in possession of all the facts, but if the recent blog post on AVN about you is all the "evidence" she has, methinks there'll be a cranky judge who'll resent having their time wasted. But then, that lot have always had a very loose relationship with evidence.

Also, while unpalatable, goatse isn't violent. Just sayin'.

Dan Buzzard So I'm guilty of being rude to people who harm the community? She also got upset with me being rude to pedophiles once.

Meryl Dorey is far from being an upstanding member of the community.

Ancient Illyria With all due respect (and assuming legitimacy), encouraging people to send her goatse in the mail is not an acceptable action. You would have been better served advertising her address as the place to send complaints about her message and leaving it at that.

Nae Hutch I agree, Illyria, that it's not appropriate. Though Dan's tweet reads as a joke, to me. I don't know that a single tweet with a tasteless joke warrants such inflammatory action. I'm rather ignorant of the legal intricacies, which is probably why I don't see the "violence" of Dan's interactions. That aside, it's a pertinent reminder that we should conduct ourselves respectfully, regardless of the AVN's reproachful behaviour.

Ancient Illyria Actually, it's also a reminder that we should be taking a long hard look at the laws and see if there are legal ways to make our point as well. We need to keep (and ramp up) the letters to the places she is going to speak, letters to the advertisers on her site and in her magazine (if it ever comes out), and we need to lobby government and government agencies as well as boycott any organisation that aligns itself with her. It's actually more effective to focus on the money trail.

She won't be able to find anything in that anyway! (and no, I haven't been there, i've seen it during an interview - the lady needs a hording intervention!) :p

Bill Rodgers So, a business site (AVN.org. Au) is being used to promote a personal issue. The AVO is being taken out in her name so I hope there is no appeal for a "fighting fund" through the AVN. Is the AVN really a business or just the mouthpiece of Meryl Dorey? I think I know the answer to that.

Dan Buzzard I own BigPharma.com.au but as of yet it doesn't turn a profit for the evil reptilians.

Whereas Meryl makes a quite comfortable living from her bogus charity. Meryl Dorey and the AVN are the same thing, especially as she is the sole staff member.

Bill Rodgers Very interesting. Most of the comments I see that I assume will be relied upon are directed to the AVN and not toward Meryl Dorey and yet an APVO, which is a personal order, is being sought.

Caroline Jessica Shipley Er, no Meryl. You published pornography, and because I was in a good mood that day I sent you a warning email so you could remove it, rather than file charges against you. So, proven AVN pornographic images = 1. Proven SAVN pornographic images = 0. You do realise 1 is more than 0?
